The Hobo Nickel

by Arlene Kelsey

*Have you seen a Hobo Nickel?
They're really hard to find.
I've heard a lot about them
And been searching for some time.*

*The name explains their origin
For they're by hobos made
And, when given a meal or other need,
Into the givers hand they're laid.*

*These hobos still have their pride,
Though homeless and always roving,
And they found a way they could pay
For a meal or a piece of clothing.*

*There are many and varied artists
Their creations frantically sought.
Some have a natural talent,
Others are painstakingly taught.*

*Two artists are quite well known,
Bo and Bert by name.
What started as a livelihood,
Brought them unexpected fame.*

*The coins are fascinating,
Bearing intricately carved designs;
A face, a turtle or a mule,
involving many hours of time.*

*I've heard of Hobo Nickel auctions, and that's where I plan to go.
You can bet I'll return with a treasure, carved by a very creative hobo.*

PRESIDENT'S REPORT

by Bill "Zemo" Fivaz CLM #1

If you weren't at the recent FUN convention and OHNS festivities in Orlando this past January, you really missed a great experience! Better make your plans right now to attend next year!

The OHNS table was "manned" by Dallas and Mary Shaw, Don Haley, Ray Flanigan and a new member, my wife, Marilyn "Cookie" Fivaz. We thank them all for the long hours they put in to explain what hobo nickels are to the uninitiated and in general promote the club. And incidently, we signed up about 10 new members and two new Life Members! One new LM, Larry Briggs, also donated an additional $50.00 to the club. Thanks, Larry! See "Bo-ette's" membership report in this issue and check out what else the 2 LM's received for signing up.

The special give-away at the OHNS table mentioned in the pre-convention announcements was, as they said, unique. I talked my lovely wife Marilyn into making up about 5 gallons of her famous and delicious Mulligan Stew beforehand, and that's what was given out at the table (therefore her moniker, "Cookie"). It was kept frozen until put into the crock pot at the table and then dispensed in paper coffee cups with a spoon. The results were fantastic - we had people stopping over each day for a "fix" for lunch instead of visiting the refreshment stand! If I'm real good to Marilyn the rest of this year, maybe she'll agree to do a repeat performance next year. It was fun!

The auction this year broke all sorts of records. The 69 lots were hammered down for a total of $18,965, an all time record, with each lot averaging $275. These prices are exclusive of the 10% commission. A record was also established with 4 coins selling for over $1000 each. The previous record was broken by Lot #14 ($1950), and that new figure was topped by Lot #67 at $2000. However, members should also be very aware that 20 of the 69 lots went for $100 or less with several under $50, so there was really something for everyone.

Please read Bo-ette's report for information about the new multi-year membership rates and other matters covered during the general meeting and the board conclave.

Until the next issue, keep the jungle fire a-goin', the mulligan stew hot, and above all, good thoughts for everyone.

NAME THE HOBO CONTEST

Want to win an OHNS Life Membership worth $250 and have a lot of fun at the same time?! Here's all you do...

At the recent FUN convention, member Archie Taylor (who provided all the information about the tramp chair a few issues back) donated a great original painting of a hobo to the club. He bought it in an estate sale recently, and thought the OHNS might be able to use it in some way. Can we!! Here's the deal...

The board decided this character should be our official "mascot," but he needs a name. We will hold a contest, open to all paid up members except the board, to name this rascal and provide a story behind his name. Just submitting a name won't be enough as you have to write a little story about him as well to qualify.

All entries must be sent to me, Bill Fivaz, at P.O. Box 888660, Dunwoody, GA 30356-0660, by June 30, 1998. The entries will be reviewed and voted upon by the board at the Summer Seminar in mid-July and the winner will be announced in the August issue of Bo Tales.

How easy can it be! Get out your pen (or computer), get your creative juices flowing, and send in your entry. You may be the winner of an OHNS Life Membership!

On your mark ... get set ... GO!!

This Is the Coin That Started it All!!

By Braden Orr RM #425

I was browsing through a local coin shop one day when I sighted this unusual looking Roosevelt dime. At first I thought it was a dime that got screwed up at the mint but when I looked closer I realized that this dime had been altered. (Prior to this I had never seen or heard of a hobo nickel, let alone a hobo dime!) To me it looks as if Roosevelt is ready to go on a safari. I haven't had the chance to get this coin authenticated yet so I couldn't tell you if it was carved by a hobo or not. Since I got this coin I have purchased more hobo nickels but I have yet to come across anything like it.

I have a small Native American artifacts store in Carlsbad, CA and previously (2 years ago) bought and sold hobo nickels. My previous contact no longer carries nickels, and I would like your help in contacting someone here in California, or elsewhere, to purchase some. Anyone you might recommend will be appreciated.

HOW TO IDENTIFY THE ARTIST OF AN ORIGINAL HOBO NICKEL

(Including Known Unknown Artists)

By Del Romines

Trying to identify the artist of a hobo nickel is extremely hard, and is not something that can be learned from viewing a few coins or reading a few articles. The best method for learning how to identify the different artists is to look at, study and compare as many hobo nickels as possible. Following are just a few hints to keep in mind when trying to identify the various artists.

Most of the carvings by George Washington "Bo" Hughes can be accurately recognized about 90% of the time.. There are some of "Bert's" coins which are erroneously attributed to "Bo," and also some of "Bo's" which have been attributed to Bert. The majority of "Bo's" work can be recognized as genuine from marks left on his coins from his coin holder. As I have told others in the past, I will not explain these markers, nor will I show photographs of the markers. These markers are just about the only thing which has not yet been copied in an attempt to reproduce "Bo's" work.

Besides the coin holder marks, most of "Bo's" work can be fairly well recognized by the tools which he used. On many of his earlier carvings he used very fine gravers which were probably made from small files. On some of his early works he also used a knife. When the two types of work are compared, often the style of the carvings show enough similarities to determine the artist. If the early carvings by knife or graver are just typical hobos, you can normally see the extreme likenesses between the two types.

Even though on both "Bert" and "Bo" early carvings, there are numerous likenesses, there are normally enough differences that they can be separated. On rare occasion, the early "Bo" and "Bert" carvings will have the same markings from the coin holder. Since

"Bert" and "Bo" were together a lot, there is no doubt that they did share the various tools. In cases such as this, you must compare the early works with the later "Bo" works to make a comparison as stated in the previous paragraph.

Carving by George Washington
"Bo" Hughes.

The chisels used by "Bo" in his later years (after the hand injury) were fairly broad tipped, and studies of his later carvings show positive evidence of the chisel tips getting finer as he regained the use of his hand. Probably in the late '60's and early '70's, "Bo's" work almost reached the quality of his early years. Even though the later fine works of Bo looked almost as good as the earlier works, the differences are notable.

For comparative photographs, use photographs on pages 25-27, and 39-42 in The Hobo Nickel book.

There are occasions when extreme study must be made in attempts to identify a carving as a known artist carving. On page 75 in The Hobo Nickel book, listed under PRISONER NICKEL, there are two photographs which were finally attributed to "Bert." The major differences in the carving of these two coins was the quality of tools and working conditions with which "Bert" had to work.

Another carving attributed to "Bo"

Unless there are some very strong points on other carvings which can be used, identifying Known Unknown artists is extremely difficult, and is probably about 90% guesstimation on most. One such artist is frequently referred to as "Peanut Ear." The work on these carved/punched coins can be fairly easily recognized. The most prominent feature is the ear which is shaped much the same as a peanut. There are other carvings which have a peanut shaped ear, and if only the ear of these carvings is used for identification, it would be extremely hard to make a fairly positive statement. There are other points on these carvings which makes it easier to identify "Peanut Ear" carvings. Normally the hat band and collar on these carvings are basically the same. On most copies examined to date, there is one row of hair punched which runs from the ear to the forehead just below the hat brim. At least one copy examined had a row of carved hair instead of punched, but all other known markers were solid. Even on the Peanut ear, you must also remember that this artist may not have made his first carvings to look like all the others, so it may be impossible to identify some of his work, or work of other artists. See page 51 in The Hobo Nickel book for six Peanut Ear carvings.

Another Known Unknown artist's works can be easily recognized by his self portraits. The carvings may or may not have looked like the artist, but the carvings do look alike. This artist probably was one of the early itinerant workers who turned to the Mid West at the beginning of the Great Depression in attempts to find employment.

Self Portrait - perhaps of an early itinerant worker.

Besides having a probable self portrait on his coins, he also dated the coins. The earliest dated carving to date is 1929. His carvings (multiples each year) went at least into 1936. Compare the photographs on pages 55 & 86 of The Hobo Nickel book.

It is very difficult to be sure on many of the Known Unknown artists. The main keys are extreme likenesses of the carvings, specific features on most like carvings, coin holding device marks, like tools used for carving or punching, and on rare occasion, initials or names on coins.

A maker of many of the better modern carvings was the late John Dorusa. On most early Dorusa coins examined, hair, the most prominent identifying marker, is punched in. In his later years, he did some feeble completely carved coins. These coins are relatively crude, and do not come up to the same quality as his carved and punched coins of the early to mid 1980's.

Two reverse carvings by John Dorusa.

Basically, the best method of trying to attribute a carving to a known artist or to a known unknown artist is to use the following points:

1. Like (not similar) features on different coins.
2. Tool markings and types of tools used by the artist.
3. Coin holder marks similar to vise marks.
4. The same wording carved into a coin may be an indication they are done by the same artist, but do not rely heavily on this. It appears that a couple of different artists carved coins with the word ISHKABIBLE. Possibly ISHKABIBLE was carved into the hobo nickels after they were found by someone. This would indicate two different artists on the same coin.
5. Possibly the worst of all general features to try to use are carved initials, names, and/or dates, as they are frequently copied.

The Fish Was Hooked!

By Norm Talbert RM #38

Thirty-five years ago a coin dealer friend of mine - Lou Irwin of The Money Shop, told me "You can't be both a dealer and a collector." I agree in principle and do not collect coins. I do however believe that tokens & medals and coins are two separate fields. Being a coin collector turned dealer, I find no conflict between my vocation as a coin dealer and with my hobby collecting Civil War Tokens, Ohio medals and yes - HOBO NICKELS.

As a young dealer, I would arrive early (and still do!) in an area for a coin show and visit the coin shops, talking with friends and looking for inventory for resale. During the conversation, I would usually get around to asking, "By the way, do you have any HOBO NICKELS?" While my request was sincere, most of the time it was met with ridicule and one time I vividly remember one dealer laughingly saying, "You mean these old mutilated nickels?" as he shoved a junk box in my direction. Not wanting to offend this BOZO who just called my nickels mutilated, I just sat; nodded my head, and smiled. After all, I still wanted the HOBO's.

Invariably, most dealers would go to their catch-all place, usually in a desk with the rubber bands, paper clips and pens or to a junk box where items ended up that had no specific place to go. But, after digging through their junk, I knew I had them where I wanted them and could usually get myself buried for $1.00 to $5.00 - each. I might add that one time I was thought to be out of my mind for paying $10.00 for an XF 1913-S type II HOBO NICKEL.

1913 Hobo Nickel by Peanut Ear

1915 "Camel Head" Hobo Nickel

Hobo Nickel with over-lay hat

1918/17 - D Hobo Nickel

One thing led to another and before long, I was starting to look for the various dates I didn't have. Then, I got really silly and along with the dates, decided to go after the mints as well. Knowing of my insane mission, Mark Borckardt (with whom I traveled before he took a position with Bowers & Marena) came to me at a Long Beach show. The grin on his face told me I was in big trouble. He came up with the "King" of HOBO NICKELS - the 1918/17 in almost VF. THE FISH WAS HOOKED!

Now I was getting serious! I realized that by just goofing around I had completed over 2/3 of the set of HOBO NICKELS, by date and mint mark. I continued my search, but I wanted to assemble the set and certain dates were quite illusive.

At a Pittsburgh (PA) coin show, I was explaining my frustrations to carver John Dorusa; (John and I went back many years - but that's another story for a future Bo Tales). John offered to make for me the missing "HOBO's" and blend them in to my collection if I would supply the properly dated nickels. I thanked him for the offer, asked to keep my options open, but wanted to give the hunt a little more time.

Well, you guessed it, a year and zero nickels later, I asked if the offer was still good. I knew it would be, so I bought two of each of the missing dates (just in case), and John Dorusa completed my collection.

I only bring my now completed set out every couple of years to show, and only to a show within driving distance. First, there is the security issue and second, it takes a show case to display the coins and the holder, and that much space can detract from my coin sales. My intention (always good) is to make up a display of HOBO NICKELS and exhibit it at the various shows.

If you see me at a show (I deal under the name of Great Lakes Coins) and have any dated HOBO NICKELS in the late teens or twenties for sale, please look me up. I'm always interested in these rascals but do need them in at least average or better grade.

If you do not want to sell, perhaps a trade is in order.

In closing, please remember: you can call my nickels carved, etched, punched, whittled, or chiseled. It's fine to call them engraved, sculptured, cut, carved, pushed or overlayed metal. You can even say they belong in "prison"; but please, if you don't want to see a grown man cry, DO NOT CALL MY NICKELS MUTILATED!!!

LETTER OF RESIGNATION

The Officers and Board of Directors of OHNS at their recent meeting in Orlando, FL regrettably acknowledged and accepted a letter of resignation as OHNS authenticator from Del Romines, HCLM #1.

"With some mixed emotions I hereby submit my letter of resignation as an OHNS authenticator for health reasons."

Very respectfully yours,

A very good movie on the hardship of being a hobo is Emperor of the North starring Lee Marvin as the man of the road and Ernest Borgnine as the merciless railroad cop. See if you can find a copy at your video store. You will enjoy it, and gain increased respect for the life style some people, known as hobos, chose to follow.

Thanks very much for being so quick on the previous lot of nickels I sent for authentication!

This from Carollee "Cee Bo" Allen:

Greetings and commendations for all the great work the Board Bo's are doing! I just received my newsletter (Bo Tales) and read it cover to cover. I was inspired and decided to throw in my 5 cents, too.

The auction catalogue arrived in time for me to take it to my Stanwood, WA coin club's December meeting. A few folks had seen the "slide show" (by Bill Fivaz) a few years back, but the renewed interest sparked by my hobo displays and the auction catalogue was exciting. I am planning to attend the FUN show this January. (Note from editor – "Cee Bo" did attend, and it was great to meet her!!) It will be my 2nd adventure to Orlando – and my 1st anniversary as an OHNS member. I will most likely act as an agent (in the OHNS auction) for at least 6 interested parties.

I am writing now to express my happiness with my membership and the subject of our society. I am interested in obtaining a Life Membership if there will be a "special" offer running any time soon. Please keep me informed.

(Note from editor – again – the Board decided at their meeting NOT to reduce the cost of Life Membership, but we did introduce a multi-year membership – please check the renewal form.)

Thanks for offering back issues of Bo Tales – my order is included!

Wanderfully yours, "Cee Bo"

I read your article in the December '97 Bo Tales. (Ethnic-Style Hobo Nickels, by Gail Baker Kraljevich) As a child, I had several Yiddish Nickels. That's how they were referred to in the thirties. I have no idea whatever became of them. I never heard them called Jew Nickels. Of course Jew and Yiddish is interchangeable to many people.

At the present time, I have an entire set of Buffalo Nickels. It took the best part of three years to complete. My Hobo Nickel collection consists of twenty-four examples. J. Allen fashioned several of these. She even made one on a 1925 nickel, year of my birth. I have a couple of J.D.'s (John Dorusa) work. The balance are by unknown artists.

I took a couple of my nickels to a nearby coffee shop. Several of the patrons were shocked at what they called defaced coins. We have a long way to go to educate people!.

BO TALES SAVED ME FROM MAKING A COSTLY MISTAKE!

By Steve Berenhans RM #393

I joined the Original Hobo Nickel Society close to a year ago, not owning a single hobo nickel! I did buy a "neo-bo" knowing it was a new work done with an electric engraver, but I longed for a "real" original hobo nickel. I joined so that I could study the photos in the auction catalogue, read Bo Tales, and learn whatever I could.

Steve's Hobo Nickel from the Bill Fivaz Collection.

Another Hobo Nickel with the Fivaz Pedigree

I'm happy to say that last August, at the New York ANA show, I purchased not one, but two beautiful originals. And better still – they came from Bill Fivaz's collection!

The above story was all I thought I had to say until I attended a small coin show here in Long Island. I spotted an interesting hobo nickel that had Uncle Sam carved in the "original" techniques. The seller didn't know if the carving was old or not, but he had it priced as if it was. I didn't know what to make of the counterstamp on the reverse, as I had not encountered any such counterstamp in my brief experience. I took his card, with the idea of buying it at a later date. When I received my August copy of Bo Tales, I read of the carvings of J. Allen and realized that the stamp and carving were hers. I can appreciate craftsmanship, be it old or new, and I may buy some of her work if I have the chance, but that article in Bo Tales saved me from making a costly mistake!

*NOTE -- The pictures accompanying this article were taken by Bill Fivaz, who also confirmed the pedigree of the pieces. Steve wrote: "What I did to insure the accuracy of this article is a story in itself! Bill was very nice, writing back and forth, and he took beautiful photos for free, because I wrote an article for Bo Tales. It was a thrill for me to correspond with such a well-known numismatic personality."

Sometimes The Authenticators Do Not Agree!

DEF-001

Bald headed & large nosed hobo.

Date of Coin: no date Mint Mark: none
Grade: low grade

Authentication Number: DEF-001

First Authenticator: Delma Romines

Comments:

The highly polished field does not have the metal texture which is normal for a coin over 15 years old. Very recent shiny scratch marks can be seen beneath all of the hair. Recent wire brush marks are also visible. Even though a neo-bo, it is expertly done and has nice eye appeal.

Second Authenticator: Don Farnsworth

Quality: Average Original

Comments:

"Bearded man wearing a jewel" Punched hair and hairline; rest of coin carved after coin was smoothed out by buffing. The recent shiny scratch marks on the head are probably the result of cleaning the coin several years later. In my opinion, it is an average original hobo nickel carved on a low grade buffalo nickel.

Third Authenticator: Gail Kraljevich

Quality: Average Original

Comments:

This is not the typical work of any of the known modern artists. Buffed, carved and polished.

Probable Artist: unknown

Method: carved

DEF-002

"The Pilot," possibly Charles A. Lindbergh.

Date of Coin: 1926 Mint Mark: none
Grade: Fine

Authentication Number: DEF-002

First Authenticator: Delma Romines

Comments:

A carving with very nice eye appeal, but the metal has positive signs of recent very fine wire brushing, polishing, and some surfaces with fresh chisel marks. The total lack of toning on the polished surfaces indicates the coin may have been made, or at least polish altered in the past five years (probably more recent).

Second Authenticator: Don Farnsworth

Quality: Superior Original

Comments:

A beautiful carving. The field is well-dressed and appears original. The outline of the head and shoulders also appear original. The fine lines in the hat do show some bright metal and is inconsistent with the rest of the carving, but is not strong enough to remove this coin from the "original hobo carving" category, in my opinion. How the coin was stored and preserved after the carving can explain the lack of toning on the obverse, which were carved several years after the coin was circulated and stored.

Third Authenticator: Gail Kraljevich

Quality: Above Average Original

Comments:

Beautiful hand carved coin. Certainly not one of the mass-produced modern carvings. (But, probably not done over a campfire either!)

Probable Artist: unknown

Method: carved

Sometimes The Authenticators Do Not Agree!

F-057

Bearded man with derby.

Authentication Number: F-057

First Authenticator: Bill Fivaz

Quality: Below Average Original

Comments:

"Carving" appears to have been done with a sharp instrument other than a knife or chisel, possibly a nail. Triangular design around the eye, and many smoothed (polished) surfaces. Probably done in the 30's or 40's.

Second Authenticator: Delma Romines

Quality: Average Neo-bo

Comments:

Highly polished, areas of whizzing, and texture of metal in cut areas all have texture consistent with recent (probably since 1992-93) work.

Third Authenticator: Gail Kraljevich

Quality: Below Average Original

Comments:

Even though this coin has been polished, the style, overall condition of the coin, and the subject of the carving lead me to believe this is an original carving.

Date of Coin: 1923 Mint Mark: P

Probable Artist: unknown

Grade: AU

Method: carved & punched

F-064

Bearded man with mustache
wearing a derby hat.

Authentication Number: F-064

First Authenticator: Bill Fivaz

Quality: Below Average Original

Comments:

Carved piece with punched beard. Crude attempt at designing an ear which is set way too far forward. Subject is smoking a "fag," with smoke rising from end. Date is so bold and prominent it could have been done in that year.

Second Authenticator: Delma Romines

Comments:

Visible cut metal has probably not been exposed to the elements for over five years. Extraneous material (especially in the ear) appears to be a mixture of cigarette ashes, graphite, an unknown substance & oily base.

Third Authenticator: Gail Kraljevich

Quality: Average Original

Comments:

Average original hobo nickel, not a mass produced modern carving.

Date of Coin: 1918 Mint Mark: P

Probable Artist: unknown

Grade: VF

Method: carved & punched

F-162

Domed hat hobo.

Authentication Number: F-162

First Authenticator: Delma Romines

Quality: Below Average

Neo-bo

Comments:

Recently cut metal texture indicate this coin is a fairly recent carving.

Second Authenticator: Bill Fivaz

Quality: Above Average

Original

Comments:

I feel this is an original carving by a relatively talented artist. It appears that a broad-tipped chisel was used for most of the dressing in the field. The patina also suggests that it's an original piece.

Third Authenticator: Don Farnsworth

Quality: Above Average

Original

Comments:

I could not detect evidence of recently cut metal. The patina of the obverse matches that of the reverse. To me, this means that the coin may have been carved in the mid to late forties.

Date of Coin: 1937 Mint Mark: ?

Probable Artist: unknown

Grade: Fine

Method: carved & chiseled

F-168

Goateed man wearing domed hat.

Authentication Number: F-168

First Authenticator: Bill Fivaz

Quality: Below Average

Original

Comments:

While there appears to be a lot of "fresh" metal on this piece, I still feel it is an original. Interestingly, there also appears to be extra metal (lead?) built up on the hat, hat brim, ear and chin.

Second Authenticator: Delma Romines

Quality: Below Average

Neo-bo

Comments:

Most surfaces appear to be new scratches. Extraneous materials on obverse are not compatible with the reverse.

Third Authenticator: Don Farnsworth

Quality: Below Average

Original

Comments:

The hat and brim were carved from lead that had been (soldered?) onto the nickel. The softer lead was easier to carve than the hard nickel alloy. The goatee and mustache were scratched in. Minimal work was done on this below average carving. The new scratches are the result of cleaning. The nickel weighted in at 5.3 grams which is heavier than the normal 4.9 grams

Date of Coin: 1916 Mint Mark: P

Probable Artist: unknown

Grade: AU

Method: carved

F-176

"Street Jeweler"
Bearded man with domed hat,
stickpin (jeweled) in collar.

Authentication Number: F-176

First Authenticator: Bill Fivaz

Comments:

Very nearly superior. Totally carved with curly beard and zigzag design on hat band. Has some characteristics of "Bo's" work. Field partially dressed behind, over and in front of head. Profile unchanged.

Second Authenticator: Delma Romines

Quality: Above Average Neo-bo

Comments:

All cut marks, tone & texture appear to be relatively recent. Extraneous materials in hair appears to be a recently applied oil base with possibly graphite for the darkener.

Third Authenticator: Don Farnsworth

Quality: Above Average Original

Comments:

Carved on a choice XF P nickel, subject is a bearded, jeweled man in a domed hat. Entire coin, including the beard, is carved. Art work is above average. A desirable piece to own.

Date of Coin: no date Mint Mark: P

Probable Artist: unknown

Grade: AU

Method: carved

Neo-bo

Long hair & bearded man with derby.

Authentication Number: Neo-bo

First Authenticator: Bill Fivaz

Quality: Average Original

Comments:

One of the few hobo nickels seen on a Liberty nickel. Flat brimmed hat, long hair in front and back of ear; totally carved, probably by artist with initials "F.B." (carved into reverse). Portrait and areas in front and behind have been abraded, leaving dark areas around stars, date, etc...

Second Authenticator: Delma Romines

Quality: Average Neo-bo

Comments:

Heavily abraded surfaces and what appears to be "cooked in" extraneous material on entire coin indicates recent manufacturing. Edge of coin has some typical heat toning showing through material.

Third Authenticator: Gail Kraljevich

Quality: Average Neo-bo

Comments:

I have no doubt this is a recently done piece. It shows many signs of a "neo-bo" by Frank Brazzell. The surfaces were abraded before the design elements were cut into this low grade coin. Many similar examples can be easily found.

Date of Coin: 1911 Mint Mark: none

Probable Artist: Frank Brazzell

Grade: low grade

Method: machined

Sometimes The Authenticators Do Not Agree!

Neo-bo

Bearded man with domed hat

Authentication Number: Neo-bo

First Authenticator: Bill Fivaz

Quality: Below Average Original

Comments:

This appears to be totally knife carved with some areas that appear to have been done with a small crude chisel or graver

Second Authenticator: Delma Romines

Quality: Below Average Neo-bo

Comments:

Very recent cut metal surfaces in the field, and recent scratches in hair and on shoulder indicate recent work.

Third Authenticator: Don Farnsworth

Quality: Below Average Neo-bo

Comments:

Rotation of the coin under the light reveals shiny surfaces on the knife carved scratches. Even the areas done by a small chisel appear shiny. Therefore, I believe that the carving is recent. The artwork is, in my opinion, a high end below average.

Date of Coin: no date Mint Mark: none

Probable Artist: unknown

Grade: low grade

Method: knife carved

Neo-bo

Domed hat hobo.

Authentication Number: Neo-bo

First Authenticator: Delma Romines

Quality: Average Neo-bo

Comments:

Virtually all cut areas appear to be very recently cut. The hair appears to have been recently scratched in. Coin does have some nice eye appeal.

Second Authenticator: Bill Fivaz

Comments:

I believe this is an original carving. The cuts, when viewed at a sharp angle appear to be consistent with an old carving and the "bright metal" is not a problem for me as it could have been cleaned within the last 10 years.

Third Authenticator: Don Farnsworth

Comments:

In my opinion, this is a recently carved nickel, done on a VF 1927. The metal seems freshly cut. I also believe that a machine was used to obtain the deep carving behind the neck. Quality of work is above average.

Date of Coin: 1927 Mint Mark: none

Probable Artist: unknown

Grade: XF

Method: carved & scratched

Hobo Nickel Collage

The collage on the cover of the last issue of Bo Tales drew quite a bit of attention. The picture was produced from an original picture by Bill Fivaz and is currently hanging on the wall in your editor's living room.

Young Numismatist Jake Wood liked the cover so much, he suggested OHNS produce a similar collage in poster size and offer it to members.

Collage on the cover of the December Bo Tales

President Bill Fivaz, responded to this great suggestion with gusto! At the FUN convention he introduced a new collage, available in a variety of sizes, for sale to members. Proceeds from the sale of the collage posters and post cards will benefit OHNS and the scholarship fund.
